

The Faith Based Counselor Training Institute Goes To Washington

Dr. Michael K. Haynes, founder and executive director of The Faith Based Counselor Training Institute, and board chairman Bob Wilson, meet with the Faith Based Initiative Office Staff in the White House to discuss the use of the FBCTI curriculum in the President's Faith Based Community Initiatives around the country.

The FBCTI distance learning courses are being taken by students in all 50 states and several foreign countries. The curriculum is taught by some of the nation's leading Christian counselors and addresses the most pressing problems America is facing. Topics such as chemical dependency, anger management, complex family issues, domestic violence, crisis intervention, working with inmates and their families, ministering to the victims of crime and disasters, and many other extremely timely and relevant life controlling problems people are facing.

Because of Dr. Haynes experience working as a law enforcement and firefighter chaplain at Ground Zero, God has given The Faith Based Counselor Training Institute a national training platform and well over 7,000 people have been certified in all of its courses and various workshops.
